SGA International Bazaar Offers Foreign Gifts

Barry shoppers will enjoy a "unique" way of Christmas shopping this year, according to Michele Leonardi, SGA vice-president.

An International Christmas Bazaar, sponsored by SGA, will provide imported gifts within students' price ranges of $1.00 to $10.00.

"Bazaar, sponsored by SGA, will provide imported gifts within students' price ranges of $1.00 to $10.00."

The sale to be held next weekend in Thompson Hall will feature gifts selected by J. F. Bard, owner of an import company in Chicago.

Mr. Bard travels to Europe each year and around the world every two or three years collecting unusual gifts for Barry. He has been servicing colleges and universities for eight years with similar sales.

Receiving $2,000 of gift items, the SGA will earn a commission on the amounts sold. The commission will go into the SGA treasury for items not covered in the budget, such as the spring Women's Conference.

The International Bazaar will feature such gifts as glassware, pottery, jewelry, vases, decanters, audiotapes, and international dolls. Gifts represent Austria, the British Isles, France, Finland, Hungary, Holy See, Holland, Sweden, Spain, and many other countries.

Michele indicated some of the bazaar's specific items, including arabesque jewelry, rings, pens, greeting cards, and miniatures.

"Instead of the typical gifts we give every Christmas, here is an opportunity to give unusual, unique gifts within our price range," Michele urged.

The Christmas Bazaar will be handled by the SGA service committee.

Librarian Concerned Over Friday Hours

"To stay open or not to stay open on Friday evenings, that is the question" says librarian Sister Ignatia. Students are not using the library to the best advantage, and the average number of persons in the library on Friday night is 2.0.

There is a possibility that the library may be closed on Friday nights next semester if business does not pick up. Sister adds: "Students could come use your library. We would like to continue to serve you on Friday evening."

Davis to Discuss Ghetto Crisis At Assembly

Lloyd Davis, recipient of Chicago's Thomas H. Wright Award for outstanding professional service in the field of intergroup relations, will address the student body on Dec. 4 at 11:00 a.m. in the auditorium.

"The Ghetto Crisis in America" is the topic of Mr. Davis' discussion. Mr. Davis is currently an Intergroup Relations Specialist in the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

A graduate of DePaul University, Mr. Davis received his Masters of Social and Industrial Relations at Loyola University. He was the former executive director of the New Haven Commission on Equal Opportunity and the Catholic Intercultural Council of Chicago.

Presently Mr. Davis is the secretary of HUD, Housing and Urban Development, Intra-Department Council on Equal Opportunity, a member of the HUD Department Task Force on Social Concerns, a staff advisor to the Subcommittee on Housing Task Force on Civil Rights '68, and chairman of the Annual Washington Conference for HUD Equal Opportunity Staff.

Civil Service Gives Dates

The United States Civil Service Commission has announced examination dates for 1968 summer employment.

The dates are as follows: December 9, 1967; January 13, 1968; February 10, 1968; and March 9, 1969. The test will cover all temporary employees, grades GS-1 through GS-4, hired from May 14 through September 30, 1968.

All interested students should contact the U.S. Civil Service Commission and ask for Bulletin No. 316-18, dated August 26, 1967.

Further questions may be directed to Edward P. Blanston, Social Security Administration District Office, 12925 N.W. 7th Avenue, Miami, Florida 33168.

Gen. Walt Holds Audience Spellbound

by Joan Leshan

Anyone could overlook the sparkle of his stark white uniform and the impressive rows of medals and ribbons when confronted with this man's warm, sincere smile. Lt. General Lewis W. Walt, addressing the 27th Founders' Day Assembly, related his personal experiences as the former commander of Myners in Vietnam with the compassion, love, humility and emotion seldom attributed to a military man.

There was little movement if any during the one hour and three minutes it took for General Walt to intersperse individual, personal stories with information and explanations of Vietnam.

The General began by enumerating the reasons for the United States involvement in South Vietnam. Stressing the need to stop Communist aggression, General Walt recounted the potential danger should Communist control southeast Asia. "They would be on the Indian Ocean and from that position they could threaten other countries. They would threaten the Philippines, Indonesia, Australia, Africa, the back door of the Middle East and India." The General also mentioned the American commitment under the SEATO treaty and the necessity of helping those people forced to live under Communism.

The General praised the Vietnamese people. Described as defeated and broken two years ago, the Vietnamese are now confident of victory with the assistance of the United States. American soldiers are slowly gaining the confidence of a people tired of war and suspicious of Western interference. They are now working diligently not only on the battlefield but also in the villages, to free their country from Communist domination, he explained.

The Vietnamese demonstrated their courage and confidence in this year's election. General Walt recounted numerous incidents he had personally witnessed of the barbaric atrocities of the Communists. To prevent the people from voting, the Communists waged a campaign of terror in which the villagers were threatened with death. The General spoke of Communist warnings such as the mutilation and death of women and children and of mortar attacks on the polling places during the voting itself. This, however, did not stop a people tired of subjection, since over 80% of the eligible voters came to the polls that day.

"I wonder how many of our people would go to the polls and vote today, if they had these threats hanging over their heads," the General commented. He referred to press criticisms that the Vietnamese act "hypocritically" toward this war.

"We are winning the war," the General stated. The Communists don't have a chance militarily against the United States forces. The General noted, however, that this was not the only war within the country. The U.S. forces are also engaged in combating ignorance, poverty and disease of a people who have known nothing but war.

General Walt stressed the importance of education to these people and their children. He (Continued on Page 2)
Walt Discusses Viet War

(Continued from Page 1)
told about the work of American schools and churches in the villages where they have reoccupied from the Communists. "Rebuilding that nation, to my way of thinking, is the important part of this war," the General stated. According to the General, there are 560,000 children under the age of 12 in the 13 corps region where he was stationed.

When the General arrived two years ago, 20 per cent of those children were in school. Now there are 35 per cent in school. "We must stay and help them drive out the Communist forces and get there and protect them until these children 12 years of age and younger have a chance to grow up, have a chance to get educated, and they're going to have a firm foundation on which to build that nation."

The General felt that the United States would have troops in Vietnam for as long as . . . we have had forces in South Korea."

"The greatest Americans on the battlefield that I have ever seen" was the comment General Walt used to describe over half a million servicemen now in Vietnam. He praised their ability not only on the battlefield but also in winning the confidence of the people and helping in the pacification and the building of a nation.

Mongol among the troops is cause for great concern. Our servicemen are affected little by anti-Vietnam demonstrations in the States; however, these demonstrations encourage the enemy. Communists are convinced that they will win the war by forcing some kind of a compromise which they would consider a victory, Walt declared.

There is one strong message that this military commander is carrying to the American people, "to get back of our boys in Vietnam," and stop lending moral support to the Communist.

Volunteers Brighten Season
With Projects for Youth Hall

Survey Reveals Reactions To Recent Changes in Mass

Initial reaction to hearing the mass entirely in English was the object of a recent campus survey. Approximately 150 people were questioned and their reactions revealed that Catholics favor the mass in English by a wide margin of five-to-one.

More Meaningful

Those who support the new changes described the mass as more meaningful in English. Reactions favoring English centered around the themes of unity, clarity, deeper understanding, and greater participation of the people. One opinion encompassed all the ideas by stating that the mass entirely in English was the culmination of the previous liturgical changes and that now, all of the preceding changes unite to create a beautiful experience.

Traditionalists

The traditionalists, however, still feel that the mass was more unified with a Latin consecration. They also feel that the mass will go back to a circus arena.

Special Occasions

Many of those who favored the consecrated mass, however, felt that the mass should be for special occasions and not every Sunday.

Distraction was the main reason why the opponents of consecration prefer mass to be celebrated by one priest. One rather critical observation described the consecrated mass as a circus arena.
November 11 - November 18
That Was The Week That Was…

The World of A Queen

The Game of Life
Founders' Day, 1967
General Walt Comes to Barry
For Official Hero's Welcome . . .

Lt. General Lew Walt

Gen. Walt waves to RAA members

Playhouse welcomes the general

The German Club praises the general.

The general meets the maintenance crew.

Carol Ritchie and the general proceed to the SGA platform.
Happy faces greet the general at the Hero's Welcome.

To Receive Honorary Degree

Gen. Walt beams in his cap and gown.

Biscayne College fraternity join the fun . . .

Gen. Walt talks about the Vietnam war at the Founders' Day Assembly.

Sister Dorothy congratulates the general after he receives an honorary doctor of laws degree.
A Dream Come True . . .

Life is but an empty dream.

A strong-willed Irishman who arrived on America's shores some fifty years ago to make his mark in the golden land of opportunity certainly disregarded such a pessimistic philosophi­cal adage.

Monsignor William Barry ventured to this new land with a great deal of hope and time in making it come true.

Barry College is a vital part of the dream the Monsignor had 28 years ago. He made his dream come true by working hard; his hope was not true by overcoming the many discouraging moments he experienced in establishing this institution, his dancing superb. He

The Monsignor is dead, but his dream lives on. We add his name to those who have dedicated themselves in giving us a better world.

We, too, have our dreams. We, too, must make this a better world.

Barry has before her a man who has shown her a better world.

My descent into the library proved no more happy than my descent on the sidewalk. I was immediately overcome by the sight, the color, the light, and acrid odor of plaster impinging on my sense. A maze of little empty rooms perverted their way into the center of the library, and the place, having now reached a new library's skeleton, I ascended to go pay a visit to an old friend.

As I walked into the old Barry library I was stricken by "lovelessness" as my old friend's mouth. The wall from which familiar card catalogues used to protrude looked as if it had undergone a series of major revisions and preparation for new bridgelike.

Perhaps, my friend was getting old, I conceded.

Looking wistfully at the rest of my old friend, I wished that I had been Barry forever. But if it cannot be, I shall be content. It has bequeathed me a set of memories of its quiet manner and even comfortable chair, which (where one could be alone, but not lonely), and a bit of know­ledge.

On Monday, November 13, the second SGA General As­sembly met in the new Barry Student Assembly Center. President Michele Leonardi. Seventy-one students attended the meeting. Consideration of the committee reports and 22 elected members spotlighted the fact that the student body was representative of 49 interested members.

The purpose of the General Assembly is to inform the student body of SGA activity and to assure the Barry students that their government and their elected representatives are functioning properly. It was unfortunate that only 71 students were concerned enough to attend the assembly.

The greatest portion of responsibility for the embarrassing attendance record tests with an apathetic student body. The General Assembly meetings do, after all, not have enough interest, no? Perhaps the program of the General Assembly leaves many students uninterested. Continued committee reports tend to bore the students and whatever thin flame of interest flickers in the audience, the flame is quickly extinguished by boredom. The General Assembly, however, must continue to set a agenda and the agenda itself parti­cularly explains the reason for a rather low-thrilled atmosphere, de­void of interest.

The work of the various com­mittees is vital and important to each student, but the importance of the committee's work is lost during the presentation of the chairman's report. The de­scribed rapport between the chairperson and the congregation of representatives often underlines the importance of the meeting. The reports and the students in the audience fail to materialize. The details of committee reports, present and SGA elected members have not been able to reach the students. If the stimuli­um of the students who attended the first to the second General Assembly is indicative of a con­tinuing trend, there may be no students to reach at the third General Assembly.

Walt's visit to Barry and gave a little insight into the man's message on the war.

A PLUS — to the students who attended the Barry drama and music departments. The elabor­ate sets and costumes of My Fair Lady were expertly designed to one simple set and the bright, happy sweaters of the spirited group of urchins. Even the ear accustomed to such tunes as "If Ever I Would Leave You" and "The Street Where You Live" were treated to a different sound. Some of the musical numbers offered truly memorable experiences.

A PLUS — to the three-star Marine General who awakened the minds of Barry students with his personal accounts of the Vietnam war, and gave cause to sober thinking about this better world.

Barry has before her a man who has shown her a better world.

A PLUS — to the Barry College students who attended the Barry drama assembly to hear his remarks.

A PLUS — to the three-star Marine General who awakened the minds of Barry students with his personal accounts of the Vietnam war, and gave cause to sober thinking about this better world.

My descent into the library proved no more happy than my descent on the sidewalk. I was immediately overcome by the sight, the color, the light, and acrid odor of plaster impinging on my sense. A maze of little empty rooms perverted their way into the center of the library, and the place, having now reached a new library's skeleton, I ascended to go pay a visit to an old friend.

As I walked into the old Barry library I was stricken by "lovelessness" as my old friend's mouth. The wall from which familiar card catalogues used to protrude looked as if it had undergone a series of major revisions and preparation for new bridgelike.

Perhaps, my friend was getting old, I conceded.

Looking wistfully at the rest of my old friend, I wished that I had been Barry forever. But if it cannot be, I shall be content. It has bequeathed me a set of memories of its quiet manner and even comfortable chair, which (where one could be alone, but not lonely), and a bit of know­ledge.

On Monday, November 13, the second SGA General As­sembly met in the new Barry Student Assembly Center. President Michele Leonardi. Seventy-one students attended the meeting. Consideration of the committee reports and 22 elected members spotlighted the fact that the student body was representative of 49 interested members.

The purpose of the General Assembly is to inform the student body of SGA activity and to assure the Barry students that their government and their elected representatives are functioning properly. It was unfortunate that only 71 students were concerned enough to attend the assembly.

The greatest portion of responsibility for the embarrassing attendance record tests with an apathetic student body. The General Assembly meetings do, after all, not have enough interest, no? Perhaps the program of the General Assembly leaves many students uninterested. Continued committee reports tend to bore the students and whatever thin flame of interest flickers in the audience, the flame is quickly extinguished by boredom. The General Assembly, however, must continue to set a agenda and the agenda itself parti­cularly explains the reason for a rather low-thrilled atmosphere, de­void of interest.

The work of the various com­mittees is vital and important to each student, but the importance of the committee's work is lost during the presentation of the chairman's report. The de­scribed rapport between the chairperson and the congregation of representatives often underlines the importance of the meeting. The reports and the students in the audience fail to materialize. The details of committee reports, present and SGA elected members have not been able to reach the students. If the stimuli­um of the students who attended the first to the second General Assembly is indicative of a con­tinuing trend, there may be no students to reach at the third General Assembly.

Vietnam Report Card

Those attending the Barry College Production of The Roar of the Crowd were privileged to watch a real pro at work. Errol Strider as the underdog Cocky was believable, lovable and laughable as he played his role in the Game of Life. He had style and polish and though, his dancing superb. He

The variety and depth of hu­man emotions are revealed in Cocky's numbers. In "This Dream" he is the man he would like to be, rescuing the fair maid­en and slaying dragons with an enormous pencil. I also enjoyed the adage, "If Ever I Would Leave You" and "The Street Where You Live" were treated to a different sound. Some of the musical numbers offered truly memorable experiences.

A PLUS — to the three-star Marine General who awakened the minds of Barry students with his personal accounts of the Vietnam war, and gave cause to sober thinking about this better world.

Barry has before her a man who has shown her a better world.

A PLUS — to the students who attended the Barry drama and music departments. The elabor­ate sets and costumes of My Fair Lady were expertly designed to one simple set and the bright, happy sweaters of the spirited group of urchins. Even the ear accustomed to such tunes as "If Ever I Would Leave You" and "The Street Where You Live" were treated to a different sound. Some of the musical numbers offered truly memorable experiences.

A PLUS — to the Barry College students who attended the Barry drama assembly to hear his remarks.

A PLUS — to the three-star Marine General who awakened the minds of Barry students with his personal accounts of the Vietnam war, and gave cause to sober thinking about this better world.

My descent into the library proved no more happy than my descent on the sidewalk. I was immediately overcome by the sight, the color, the light, and acrid odor of plaster impinging on my sense. A maze of little empty rooms perverted their way into the center of the library, and the place, having now reached a new library's skeleton, I ascended to go pay a visit to an old friend.

As I walked into the old Barry library I was stricken by "lovelessness" as my old friend's mouth. The wall from which familiar card catalogues used to protrude looked as if it had undergone a series of major revisions and preparation for new bridgelike.

Perhaps, my friend was getting old, I conceded.

Looking wistfully at the rest of my old friend, I wished that I had been Barry forever. But if it cannot be, I shall be content. It has bequeathed me a set of memories of its quiet manner and even comfortable chair, which (where one could be alone, but not lonely), and a bit of know­ledge.

On Monday, November 13, the second SGA General As­sembly met in the new Barry Student Assembly Center. President Michele Leonardi. Seventy-one students attended the meeting. Consideration of the committee reports and 22 elected members spotlighted the fact that the student body was representative of 49 interested members.

The purpose of the General Assembly is to inform the student body of SGA activity and to assure the Barry students that their government and their elected representatives are functioning properly. It was unfortunate that only 71 students were concerned enough to attend the assembly.

The greatest portion of responsibility for the embarrassing attendance record tests with an apathetic student body. The General Assembly meetings do, after all, not have enough interest, no? Perhaps the program of the General Assembly leaves many students uninterested. Continued committee reports tend to bore the students and whatever thin flame of interest flickers in the audience, the flame is quickly extinguished by boredom. The General Assembly, however, must continue to set a agenda and the agenda itself parti­cularly explains the reason for a rather low-thrilled atmosphere, de­void of interest.

The work of the various com­mittees is vital and important to each student, but the importance of the committee's work is lost during the presentation of the chairman's report. The de­scribed rapport between the chairperson and the congregation of representatives often underlines the importance of the meeting. The reports and the students in the audience fail to materialize. The details of committee reports, present and SGA elected members have not been able to reach the students. If the stimuli­um of the students who attended the first to the second General Assembly is indicative of a con­tinuing trend, there may be no students to reach at the third General Assembly.
Students’ Needs, Abilities Interpreted by Test Service

To a college student the word "test" often implies the possibil­ity of receiving a grade, but for some others it means a threat. However, even the most ardent opponents of tests would have to agree that these many tests which help the indi­vidual to understand her potential.

In February 1967, the Barry Testing Service began operating under the direction of Mrs. Thelma Medoff. This testing service which would ministered to the areas of general ability, achievement, apti­tude, and personal qualifications, and are available to all full-time students are used to guide the student in matters of vocational and academic difficulty.

Educational tests of the type used by the Testing Service have provided many college students with valuable information regarding potential and ability in a number of different areas. The "test" or group of tests measure the different aspects of the individual's ability.

The testing service personnel have been temporarily accommodated in the house across from Barry's main gate. The peace and quiet of the headquarters for the Testing Service afford the proper atmosphere for thinking. A refreshing breeze, abundant sun­light, and flowers at the win­dows dispel any pre-conceived notions of a rigid, clinical at­mosphere.

From 9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Friday, the tests are administered to students who have been referred to the Testing Service through faculty advisors. The results are interpreted and re­turned to the faculty advisor who continues the student's guid­ance.

The specific tests chosen by the Testing Service are varied enough to adequately deal with any difficulty a student experi­ences with regard to educational and vocational problems. The results aid the faculty advisor in suggesting curriculum changes or any other adjustment which should be made in order to facilitate the solution of the student's problem.

A workshop was held on Sat­urday, October 21 for guidance counselors and administrative personnel of area high schools. To inform the participants of the availability of a supplemen­tary testing service which would help high school students with their choice of a vocational field before college admission.

Upon completion of the MAP, William Barry Library, the Testing Service will provide complete facilities for greater expansion.

History Dept. Adds Course

A new course to be added ac­cording to the recommendation of a number of interested students.

Mr. Harry J. Schaleman's World Regional Geography will be a part of the Social Science Department next semester.

Mr. Schaleman, a political geography major, describes the scope of his future course, em­phasizing the "inter-relations­hips of natural environment, political structure, history, and human forces which have com­bined to shape the nations of today." A human geography is used distinct from the scientific basis for physical geography.

Mr. Schaleman's own back­ground will provide interesting supplementary material for his course.

Expressive, New Approach Children Delight In Drama Classes

On center stage a little boy struggled, covered by crumpled stone and rotted beams from a fallen house. His arms trembling, he lifted a lamedi from his chest, then sitting up he wrenched his legs free from a heavy beam and crawled pain­fully on his stomach to the stair­case. His pantheon finished the young drama student jump­ed down the stairs and out of the room.

He is one of almost fifty child­ren who attend the drama classes each week, taught by Ivan Marlowe, with the assist­ance of Penny Bodry, a drama major, in the Barry College Lit­tle Theatre.

The purpose of these classes is "not to make little actors and actresses out of them, but to help develop the whole person, especially in their creative abili­ty."

A teacher on Channel 2, Miami's educational channel, Marlowe works for the Social Science division of the Depart­ment of Education. But for two hours on Tuesdays, Thursdays, and Saturdays he devotes his time to the children, between the ages of seven and twelve.

During these two hours the children read, do improvisations of fairy tales, or act out different countries, and their own pasto­mimes.

Most of the children are from this area and are tremendously impressed by attending classes at a college. When one little miss skidded nightly into the Lit­tle Theatre, however, Penny add­ed, "Occasionally they have to be reminded where they are."

Each class will put on a play at the end of this semester. These productions will be di­rected by Marlowe, but the children supply the entire cast. Although it is not certain, the Tuesday group will probably do Alice in Wonderland.

Penny was anurch in The Roar of the Greasepaint. "The children all acting as angels, and they have such a beau­tiful simplicity about them," she says. "Teaching this class is not only an enjoyment, it keeps you exercising." During one improvisation of Little Red Riding Hood a cute girl skipped out on stage and ex­plained, "Hi, Gram, I brought you a sub and a malted milk." Then after being told how big and furry her eyes were, 'Gram' replied, "It’s the sickness, dearie."
December 6, Wednesday: Monthly meetings will be held by the Student Education Association, Playhouse, and RAA.

December 7, Thursday: The Barry Tennis Team will play Miami-Dade Junior College at the south campus at 7:00 p.m.

Biscayne College Student Government Association is sponsoring a semi-formal Christmas Dance at 8:00 p.m.

December 8, Friday: Alpha Omega, a Barry cultural organization is sponsoring a dance in Thompson Hall from 8:00-12 p.m. The band will be The Norwegians.

Biscayne College Basketball team challenges St. Leo's College at the North Miami Beach Auditorium at 8:00 p.m. Student tickets are 95 cents.

December 9, Saturday: At the Orange Bowl, the University of Miami plays the University of Florida at 8:15 p.m.

Biscayne College again plays St. Leo College at the North Miami Beach Auditorium at 8:00 p.m.

December 10, Sunday: The Fifth Semi-Annual meeting of the Florida Chapter of the American Catholic Philosophy club is holding a meeting to which all are invited. The main program will begin at 2:15 in the Faculty Room of Thompson Hall.

December 11, Monday: Biscayne College Basketball team plays the University of Tampa at the North Miami Beach Auditorium at 8:00 p.m.

December 14, Thursday: Junior Class Day

December 15, Friday: Alpha Omega, a Barry cultural organization is sponsoring a semi-formal Christmas Dance at 8:00 p.m.

December 17, Sunday: Christmas Oratorio

December 11, Monday: Biscayne College Basketball team plays St. Leo College at the North Miami Beach Auditorium at 8:00 p.m.

Students Improve Typing Skills

The Business Department will welcome high school students for the first time second semester for a typing course.

According to Sister Clifford, head of the Business Department, these high school seniors will be expected to keep pace with the class composed also of college students.

The course, to be scheduled at night, is not strictly a business course, but will be a course in personal typing interest. Journalism students and all those who need to develop their typing skills.

It would determine all formal educational activities of the Church within the diocese. The school would be neutral of any parish affiliation and the burden of operating the school would be off the shoulders of the parish pastor.

The commission would also study the determination as to adult education and the educational objects of the Newman apostolate, whether schools or catechetical centers shall be operated in given locations; the say on location, opening and closing of schools or catechetical centers.

This commissions would likewise be responsible for determining the cost of such educational activities and the ways and means for supporting the total educational bill.

Catholic education of the future, says Fr. Williams, if it is to have a future as an effective institution, must be much broader in outlook, financial support, and lay direction.

The symposium itself in Washington was a conglomerate of top-rated educators, sociologists and administrative experts.

Father Williams stated that throughout the entire meeting most of the members discussed closing the Catholic schools altogether. The emphasis was always on reorganization.

The fifteen page report which resulted from the talks was presented the following week to a meeting of bishops who would consider it.

Molina Dancers To Perform Dec. 6

At a special student admission, Jose Molina and his entire dance company will appear December 6 at 8:30 p.m. in the Dade County Auditorium. Student ticket prices will be available.

Students in the Dominican College of San Rafael, California have been proving of the philosophy; 105 girls approved of the philosophy; 105 girls approved of the philosophy; and not the means of expressing it; 11 girls approved entirely.

At Catherine Spalding College in Kentucky a system of unlimited cuts has been continued this year. This system was first tried last year and was studied carefully. A survey showed that the policy improved student attitudes toward instructors and academic work.

College Talk

by Debbie Wirges

Barry Goldwater addressed a group of over 2,000 people at University of Miami on October 31. He spoke on all the current issues including the presidential nominations and the Vietnam War.

Also at U. of M. the students will have for the first time an opportunity to evaluate the faculty. Questionnaires will be distributed during November.

The SGA of Florida Atlantic University recently set up a Food Service Advisory Board. Its function will be to meet with the auxiliary service personnel to discuss student suggestions in the area of cafeteria improvement.

At Miami-Dade Junior College the official enrollment figures of the fall semester show that the enrollment is 2,134. So, not only does MDJC have the largest student body in Florida, but also the largest full-time enrollment in any of the nation's junior colleges.

In Palatka, Florida, the SGA of St. John's River Junior College clearly defined dress regulations. They are in part: "... proper footwear is defined as shoes, sneakers, or sandals. Hair must be kept in a neat, well-groomed manner (avoiding extravagance) ... Women's dresses and skirts must be at least lower than mid-thigh to be considered appropriate ..."

The University of Miami is riding high with six successive football victories. Their 45-7 win over Georgia Tech boosted their record to a solid 6-2.

Students in the Dominican College of San Rafael, California conducted a survey concerning attitudes toward the Hippie Movement. Twelve girls approved of the philosophy; 105 girls approved of the hippie philosophy but not the means of expressing it; 11 girls approved entirely.

At Catherine Spalding College in Kentucky a system of unlimited cuts has been continued this year. This system was first tried last year and was studied carefully. A survey showed that the policy improved student attitudes toward instructors and academic work.