Students Move Books Feb. 14 to New Library
by Giustina Misuraca

How does the head librarian with a new library move all the books out of the old library and into the new one? She employs the help of the largest and most interested group on campus, the students, and on a day of giving, Valentine Day.

Sister Ignatia, head librarian, said, “Because the library is the heart of the campus, Wednesday, February 14 will be the best day for the move.”

To Move
More than 60,000 books will occupy new shelves in the Monsignor Barry Library and over 500 cartons will be ordered to carry the books from the old library. Sr. Ignatia has suggested to the SGA that they organize a carton of books. Four girls and two boys will be stationed in both libraries to supervise the moving operation.

Plan for Moving
The library staff plans to move the books not alphabetically. Two girls will be assigned to a colored tag corresponding to an identical tag in the new library. In order to be assigned, a carton of books, four girls and two cartons of books will be assigned to a group. The girls will then match their tag to the corresponding tag in the new library and immediately place the books on the shelf.

Members of the library staff will be stationed in both libraries to supervise the moving operation.

New Books
New books, which are awaiting cataloging cards from the Library of Congress, will be handled separately along with the rare books, micro films and work room materials. There will be approximately 2,000 new books and over 500 rare books to be moved.

Periodicals will also be housed in the third floor of the new library but they will be moved at a later date.

Library Closed
In order to facilitate the move, the library will be closed February 13 through 16. Prior to February 13, students will be permitted to take out as many books as are needed for their classes. The books will then be returned to the new Monsignor Barry Library.

Nursing Profs Receive Grants For Cancer Study
Two faculty members have received grants for specialized training in care of cancer victims from the Southern Regional Educational Board.

Sister Charlyn, O.P. and Mrs. Francis Popko, members of the nursing department, have received funds from the Board as one of ten teams chosen for a study at the University of Texas M. D. Anderson Hospital during 1968 and 1969.

The purpose of the grant is to allow outstanding applicants to continue study in specialized education. The basic aim of the program, therefore, is the spread of improved knowledge for better care of the cancer patient.

Two girls will be assigned to the corresponding tag in the new library and immediately place the books on the shelf.

The cost of The Roar of the Greasepaint, Smell of the Crowd may range from $300 to $3,000, depending on the size of the audience.

The cast of The Roar of the Greasepaint, Smell of the Crowd may perform in Europe, Vietnam, or Alaska, by invitation of the U.S. State Department.

European Study Program Revises Travel Plans

"Now that the 1968 European program is on the way, plans are being made for next year's group and we are now ready to accept applications." Sister Robert Louise, O.P., would like "as many as possible to take advantage of next year's program," and anyone interested should contact Sister about scheduling.

The European-Study Program has been adjusted and differs from the trip last year and the one which begins February 15. One of the main differences is expense. Sister believes "the cost must be kept at a minimum to make it easier for the students to participate.

New Year Different
The price for next year will be about $1,500, which is almost equal to a semester here. The students will leave in April, rather than February, and have two weeks to travel before their three month semester begins in Neuchatel, Switzerland.

After their semester ends, the students will have the opportunity to travel more extensively until September.

Travel Plans: 1968
Sr. Mary Jean Mary is accompanying the five girls this year who will sail February 15 on the Olympic for Athens, Greece. The group takes almost the same route followed by Sister Robert Louise's group last year.

After traveling through Italy, Spain and France the girls begin their studies in Neuchatel. Finishing their courses in the beginning of July, the girls have the opportunity to travel to England. The 1968 program officially ends July 31.

Summer Tour Stresses Culture

Sister Grace Alice of the English Department will lead a three week European Cultural Holiday this summer. Due to depart July 14 and return August 4, the group will tour cities in seven countries.

Sister has planned the itinerary of the tour in conjunction with Pieterburen Travel Organization of Miami who will take care of all arrangements. Lisbon, Madrid, Lucerne, Munich, Paris, Rome, and London, plus intermediate stops including Florence, Bayreuth, and Stratford-upon-Avon will be visited.

Cultural Emphasis
With an emphasis placed on culture, the tour will include music, drama, and folklore festivals in addition to the traditional sightseeing. Highlighting these events will be Rome's famous Two World Music, Drama, and Folklore Festival and Royalty.

State Dept. Invites 'Roar' To Perform On Summer Tour
by Joan Lenihan and Karla McGinnis

The cast of 'Roar of the Greasepaint, Smell of the Crowd' may perform during the summer in Europe, Vietnam, or Alaska, by invitation of the U.S. State Department.

Available Dates
If dates coincide with the cast and the government agency, the production will go overseas. The cast will be available for travel from mid-July to September.

Two Shows
Two possible programs are open to The Roar cast. The State Department tour includes European embassies, while the USO show includes visits to military bases and hospitals in Vietnam, Europe, or Alaska.

Dr. Harold Hartman, head of the overseas tour committee, extended the invitation to Sister on behalf of the State Department. The Department is interested in groups which will not only entertain, but also serve as effective ambassadors from the U.S.

Fiscal Application
To formally apply for the tour, Sister sent a tape, pictures, program, and any other information to the State Department. A musical is always a good play for this purpose, but "The Roar is especially adaptable for travel because of its minimal cast, set, and costumes.

Complete Expenses
The State Department will pay for the complete travel expenses of the group, plus $7.00 a day per person for living costs. The cast and set must be cut to a minimum.

For on-the-road performances, players will double as stage crew. Settling will be $400 a gas for costumes. For musical accomplishments, only the pianist will travel with the play.

USO Tour
Sister should be assigned the USO tour. Sister Carol commented that the group could easily "stand-up entertainment" in hospitals in lieu of the play. "All the minor actors can do individual acts... and Erroll and Duwayne can sing and dance.

The cast leave on the road offering is, "Try not to be too excited!"

Other Groups
Sister commented that Catholic University has been invited on simple tours in the past years ago, the University of Miami players presented The Fantasticks abroad.

A Barry production, Sweet Mystery was invited to tour two years ago, but was unable to go. Sister hopes this summer will be the time of the tour in late January.

FBI Agent To Visit
A representative from the Federal Bureau of Investigation will visit Barry on Thursday, January 17 at 6:30 p.m.

Mr. Francis McCarron from the Miami office of the F.B.I. will show a film and lead a discussion in the large meeting room of Thompson Hall. The speaker is sponsored by the Sociology Club.

The SGA made approximately $300 profit on the December International Christmas Bazaar. Pauline Hawthorne, Reggie Robinson and Gayle Huyer display some of the imported items for sale.

Happy New Year: ...

The bell has rung and the entrances have left the post. As the season changes, the first quarter mile, we hope that the outcome for 1968 will bring:
1. an elimination of all loopholes in the SGA constitution after this trial year;
2. a stronger and louder response by all SGA members concerning their student government;
3. an open SGA government;
4. open sessions of the trials of the Judicial Board;
5. a faculty advisor for the SGA;
6. better student-faculty relations;
7. stronger student commitment to our SGA officers;
8. an opportunity for students to observe their own Congress in session.

The phrase "student responsibility" has echoed throughout the halls of educational institutions for generations. To survive in a college atmosphere, every student must display signs of responsibility or become a statistic on a graph indicating the number of students who enter college, but fail to graduate. "It stinks. No one’s going to want to see it." This was what the author of the book, reported to be her first stop. Lois Cole told him "It stinks. No one’s going to want to see it." This was what the author of the book, reported to be her first stop. Lois Cole told him that she had no manuscript to show Latham, and for some time the author had been the subject of malicious gossip about what or even if she was writing. One young writer whom she had been trying to help told her, "I would not take you for the type who write a successful book. You know, you don’t take life seriously enough to be a novelist..."

"Before I Change My Mind"
The author got so angry that she grabbed up all the manila envelopes she could find, forgetting some, and she did them down to Latham as he was about to leave Atlanta, saying, "Here, take the things before I change my mind." He had to buy an extra suitcase for the bulk of the yet-unpublished novel.

The Macmillan executive recognized the novel as important immediately. Though he'd received a telegram from the author asking, "Please send manuscript back. I've changed my mind," he sent it on to Lois Cole. She in turn sent it to a Macmillan fiction adviser whose simple advice was, "Publish as quickly as you can...."

Cite Four Sources
Margaret Mitchell's chief concern for Gone With the Wind was that it be simple, clear, and historically accurate. She reviewed each of her historical facts in the book and said she could cite four authorities for each. By January 22, 1938, the work was complete, and on March 19 the printers locked their forms.

The book was heralded as "possibly the greatest American novel" by Publisher's Weekly before it was out on the market.

Movie Contract
Having experienced the havoc of writing the book, Margaret Mitchell wanted nothing to do with the movie version when she signed a movie contract with David Selznick in January, 1936. The author, however, advised the producer on the hiring of an historical coach and a coach for Southern manners and accents.

Never Written Again
Two incidents squelched any further literary aspirations Margaret had — the Second World War and her father's illness and subsequent death. When worries subsided over the war, her father's death and her husband's heart attack, she began thinking about writing again. However, Margaret Mitchell never wrote again. She never regained consciousness after a car hit her on August 11, 1949. She died five days later.

The Pulitzer Prize winning novel is available at anyone's意识 after a car hit her on August 11, 1949. She died five days later.

Almost everyone has had an embarrassing moment or an unusual humorous experience. The editors of Orbit, the Barry College literary magazine, are sponsoring a humor contest to encourage students to write about just such experiences.

The deadline for the humorous anecdote or short, short story is Feb. 1.

The article must be original, typewritten, and double-spaced.

Entries must not exceed 300 words.

Entries are to enclose their names along with the title of the essay in a separate envelope, and turn all entries in to the English Office in Room 109, Thompson Hall.

Winning articles will be published in the 1968 issue of Orbit. The authors will be recognized at the Honors Assembly in the spring, and will receive $15.00 for the first place and $10.00 for second place.

Youth Students Perform Jan. 21
The music department will present a Young Students' Recital, Jan. 21 at 1:00 p.m. in the Barry auditorium. The seventeen participants, ranging in age from seven to seventeen, are students of Sister Rosario, head of the Barry music department.

The music for the program varies from the very elementary to the compositions of Beethoven and Schumann.

According to Sister Rosario, the program will afford an opportunity for these young musicians to display their talents.

The students are Marie Alcaro, Julia Andre, Jay Bauer, Debra Bell, Joseph Bonio, Cara Caratenza, Dino Collini, Ml...

Russian Offered Second Semester

Registration for Russian 102 is now open for students with some previous training in the language. Mr. Dalin, Russian instructor, will interview each applicant previous training in the language. Any major may be taken on this basis except in senior seminars.

The University of Massachusetts' radio station, WMUA will present a special program of music to study by during final exam week. The program will also include interviews with professors in introductory level courses. During the rushed schedule, the professor will present a short lecture highlighting course material and answer telephone calls about course material.

Students at Our Lady of Cincinnati will suffer through exams just about the same time Barry girls do — their tests go from January 30 to February 4.

News of Students

The Dominican College of San Rafael, California will employ a faculty of 100 professors this academic year. The system has organized groups of up to 15 students for this time. The system will be restricted to upper division students with a 2.0 grade average. No required course or a student's major or minor may be taken on the basis except in senior seminars.
