THE MONSIGNOR WILLIAM BARRY MEMORIAL LIBRARY presents

The Growth of the Muslim Community of South Florida and Their Adaptations of the Social Sphere

with Mirsad Krijestorac
PhD Candidate and Instructor, Florida International University

Monday, April 15, 2013 • 7:00 – 9:00 pm
Monsignor William Barry Memorial Library • Room 308
Barry University
11300 NE Second Avenue, Miami Shores, FL 33161

Mirsad Krijestorac, ABD, from the former Yugoslavia, will explore the historic growth of the Muslim community in South Florida, from immigration to the establishment of centers of worship, schools, and community activities.

Krijestorac is a Graduate Fellow of the Middle East Studies Program at Florida International University. He also holds a master’s degree in political science and a bachelor’s degree in journalism from FIU. His 2012 article on Muslims in South Florida will appear in the upcoming edited book on Muslims in Southern America. Krijestorac is currently conducting research for his dissertation with the working title, “Nationalism as a Mechanism for the Production of Identities.”
